As a resident of the area and an unofficial historian, I am very much concerned that the Bullion Plaza Cultural Center and Museum be continued as a viable entity for Miami. There is a saying that "Any person or community that does not have a museum does not know where they have been, nor a sense of where they are going".

I can not image a better site for a museum in Miami than the historic Bullion Plaza School, which has visibility, excellent access, the room and the memories for many current and past residents. The building itself is of unique architecture that draws attention to the site by both citizens and visitors.

While it may be taking time to move from a simple beginning to the type of museum wanted and needed for the community, I can see great strides made by the committed volunteers that have worked so many, many hours to make the changes needed.

Please consider that the move continues to live and the persons who have become such dedicated workers are making progress, more people are becoming involved, and for doing all they have without any dedicated funds is truly remarkable. It would be a serious disaster for the Town of Miami, which is trying hard to move forward, to lose this facility.

I sincerely hope you will help and promote the continued work being done on this project.

Sincerely,

Donna L. Anderson
